hand. They were never recovered, and the case upon which they had a bearing was, of course, dismissed." " No. sir," growled Justice Divver, not to be placated, " you clearly meant me ' " But I most solemnly protest that I did not," reiterated Anthony. "I have been in porary barracks the building collapsed and the obscene-literature-prosecuting business men were killed, while fifteen others were for the last twenty years, and have known innumerable cases to be lost because the documentary evidence which had been left with the Court was abstracted." The differences between Justice Divver and Mr. Comstock were finally patched up by Mr. Comstock's consenting to allow the exhibit to be affixed to the complaint, and by his unmistakably sincere protestations that he entertained the utmost respect for Justice Div
